EDITORIAL

Hello,

Summer is here and with that there should be hoardes of dogs at training on a Wednesday night, but where are you all – come on –

But a big big thank you should go to Evan Rahurahu, who is at training almost every week and is always there to help, support and encourage. Also Barry Grives who has been on hand taking training nights too and of course Blue who is always there for obedience training.

Recently Rachel Pither resigned as the clubs president, due to other commitments. I would like to thank Rach for all the work she has put into the club over the years, she has also been very supportive and encouraging to me since I joined the committee and more recently since I became the secretary, miss you already but all the best Rach.

The November show has been and gone, and it was a fantastic weekend, the results are further on in the magazine, but what I loved so much about the weekend was the comments from both judges on the sportsmanship that was displayed during the shows it was awesome to hear it from the judges and it was awesome to see it as well. Well done everyone.

Also in the magazine is a notice of our Christmas fun day 10th December, it will be a Christmas cracker of a day and there will be fun games, B.B.Q lunch and I've heard Father Christmas may even make an appearance, you wont want to miss this one. Bring yourselves the kids and the dogs.

Fundraising is always a battle for clubs and we have been lucky to of been offered some very easy security type work for Laings (Thanks again to Evan). If you would like to help out with this work that will be coming up every now and then, please let Blue Gardiner or any committee member know you may be able to help. It's great that we have a wee band of dedicated workers but we need to broaden that selection too.

We have a new advertiser in the magazine, check it out - she makes show leads and collars, which as we know can be hard to come by. I have a show lead and collar that was made by Stephanie and she has done a fantastic job and reasonably priced too. Im more than happy if you'd like to have a look at mine, they are custom made so im sure she would be able accommodate your requirements.

I hope you enjoy reading your newsletter, and please remember I would love to hear from you if you have something to say, until next time

Keep safe and Keep smiling and have a fantastic Christmas and a wonderful new year.

Jane

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Hi

Something I'd like to discuss

I continually have comments/gestures passed

Comments like

"I used to have a GSD but they are no good for agility"

"It's nice to see a GSD for a change"

"O you have a GSD" & the person getting back in there car and parking elsewhere. This was at a show.

Just to mention a few off hand.

I had people come up to my dog at the pet expo & say this is the type of dog they are most scared of, but your dog looks nice and friendly.

I am not going to take it personally when people cross the road to avoid my dog & I. Hey Im sure that it's not just that it's me.

I know my dog is no saint or beauty Queen but she is a dam good well behaved fun loving dog!

Who & what dogs have created this feeling/reaction from the public

What can we as GSD owners do about this?

I know what I'm doing is on the right track when people say it's nice to see a nice GSD.

Now that she has passed her 'NZKC Canine Good Citizen" (CGC) Foundation & Bronze.

We look forward to when the next chance is to sit her silver and Gold.

Let's see more of you at the assessment, Ay.

So food for thought, what are you doing about it? Where are all these puppies going that are being bred, only a handful at obedience & maybe 2 or 3 at agility?

Let's change the stigmatisation.

Karen Wilson.

From the Editor

This is a good point Karen. To a certain degree it does fall to the breeders to educate the prospective buyers on the importance of training their German Shepherd pup. Are our breeders recommending the club or stressing the importance of training, to their puppy buyers? There are a lot of GS pups being breed out there, so where indeed are they all? If the new puppy owners come to the club at least they will get an idea about the importance of training and will learn the skills to train their pup.

The committee would like to extend a warm welcome to the following new member - Sue Coxan and Jason Jarvis

VICE PRESIDENTS PEN

Many of you are aware that the elected president Rachel Bisphan has resigned. Committee has voted for this role will be shared until the 2012 AGM by the two elected Vice Presidents - myself and Blue Gardiner.

The November shows are now distant memory. Entry numbers for these shows were a little higher than we have experienced boosted by exhibitors from the North. We were blessed with great weather and our Australian judges both enjoyed their judging. Club manpower is in short supply – a phenomenon which is not exclusive to SIGSL but until we start to operate as a club and less as a group of individuals, is possibly unlikely to change. A small group joined the judges for dinner on the Sunday evening. Both had requested to stay until Tuesday and enjoyed some sightseeing in and around Christchurch. They were extremely complimentary about the innovative new development in Cashel Mall but found the extent of the earthquake damage very sobering.

We very much missed the caravan at the show – it was stolen from the grounds two weeks before the show. We understand it will be replaced but thanks to Evan, Marty and co for their innovation in finding the shed and making it more weatherproof.

James is doing an excellent job with development of the new website. We are now almost at the stage of inputting data into the categories and hope it will not be too much longer before it goes live. These things do take time – we are currently working with the company which is building the site for us to finalise the layout and hope that it will be a much more user friendly site for us. As was said at the show, we hope to attract advertisers and offer members the opportunity to advertise litters, stud dogs etc.

The next National will be held in the North Island in 2012, most likely the 17th and 18th November with our own show being held the weekend before. As information becomes available it will be passed on to members. It is being run by the combined North Island Clubs and as yet the venue is still to be determined but will be either Tatum Park or Taupo.

Thanks to Jane for organising a match day in October. It is frustrating to put energy into organising an event and to have lack of support. Members suggested more club type activities at the AGM however they cannot be run without participation.

Best wishes from the committee to you all for a Merry Xmas and the very best for 2012.

Liz

TRAINING

Training – Wednesday nights 7pm at our clubroom grounds

Also Sundays 10.00am

Come along and chat to our trainers, teach your dog new stuff, have a cuppa or just sit and watch

FUNDRAISING

A Match parade was held on October the 9th and even though the number of entries was dissapointingly low we still made a profit for the day.

We have run raffles at the recent November show, we have also recently held a sausage sizzle outside SUPER CHEAP AUTO on Blenheim rd it was reasonably successful and we hope to run more of these in the future.

We will also be running the sausage sizzle outside Bunnings (Riccarton) January 22nd.

The club has also recently gotten some security type work through Laings (Big thanks to Evan Rahurahu for getting us on to this) Also big thanks to Sam Letham, Tim Maxwell and James Pullen for keeping watch through the nights, Its great to have people who willingly step up when needed. Great work Guys!!!!

We would like to set up a data base of people we could call on when work like this becomes available please indicate to a committee member your willingness to go on this list.

The FUNDRAISING 'go to' person is Andy Connor or Blue Gardiner

1. Owners should properly house, feed, water and exercise all dogs under their care and arrange for appropriate veterinary attention if and when desired.
2. Owners should not allow any of their dogs to roam at large or to cause a nuisance to neighbours or those carrying out official duties.
3. Owners should ensure that their dogs should wear properly tagged collars and should be kept fully leashed or under effective control when away from home.
4. Owners will clean up after their dogs in public places or anywhere their dogs are exhibited.
5. Owners should agree without reservation that any veterinary surgeon performing an operation on their dogs, which could alter the natural confirmation of the animal should report such an operation to the New Zealand Kennel Club.
6. Owners should not agree to breed from a bitch in any way which is deleterious to the bitch or the breed.
7. Owners should take care to ensure that when selling dogs there is a reasonable expectation of a happy and healthy life and will help with the rehoming of a dog if the initial circumstances change.
8. Owners should provide written details of all dietary requirements and give guidance concerning responsible ownership when placing dogs in a new home.
9. Owners should not sell any dog to commercial dog wholesalers, retail pet dealers or directly or indirectly allow dogs to be given as a prize or donation in a competition of any kind.
10. Owners will not knowingly misrepresent the characteristics of the breed nor falsely advertise dogs nor mislead any person regarding the quality of the dog
11. Owners will ensure that all relevant New Zealand Kennel Club documents are provided to the new owners when selling or transferring a dog.

JOKE

Dalmatians

A nursery school teacher was delivering a station wagon full of kids home one day when a fire truck zoomed past them. Sitting in the front seat of the fire truck was a Dalmatian. The children fell to discussing the dog's duties.

"They use him to keep crowds back," said one youngster.

"No, he's just for good luck," said another.

A third child brought the argument to a close.

"They use the dogs," she said firmly, "to find the fire hydrant."

WEB SITE

New WEB SITE!!!! Yes it is finally happening it is a whole new website and new host, it is totally awesome and very different from the current one and very user friendly. We hope that it will be launched very very soon.

The new site will have a section where breeders can have there own profile page and advertise litters, stud dogs, photos and be able to brag about how great your dogs are. There will also be the opportunity for advertising of your business – of course there will be a small fee for this because as we know - there is no such thing as ‘free’ these days – We ask that you start writing up what you would like to appear on your page i.e the history of your kennel, the dogs you have bred e.t.c. The fee for your page has been set at $30.00 per year. Please contact Tarsh Connor with any queries regarding this at tarshtc@xtra.co.nz

Panosteitis Dog Bone Disease

As dog grows, owners should specifically observe some changes and possible diseases that may occur in their fast growing dogs. One of most common sign is limping, and it can be caused by several problems associated with bones and bone growth. One of most common dog bone disease is Panosteitis or “Pano”. Panosteitis is also referred to as growing pains and wandering leg lameness. This lameness can last a day to a few weeks. Pano is characterized by shifting leg lameness; one leg will heal, then another may be affected. There are no long-term ill-effects from pano, but still needs enough attention and proper care to prevent such diseases.

Panosteitis is commonly associated with large breed dogs and usually occurs in dogs 5 to 12 months of age, although it has been found in dogs as old as 5 years. Pano most commonly affects males by a ratio of 4:1. Females are most often affected around their first heat. This disease can be considered partially genetic since so many German Shepherd Dogs are prone to it. However, many other factors have been associated with pano: diet, viral diseases, autoimmune problems, hyperestrogen, and vascular problems. Other possible causes include nutritional derangements, immunologic disease, metabolic disease, and other viruses. In other words, no one knows what causes it. Some clinical signs were long bone pain, shifting leg lameness, fever, anorexia, lethargy. The common symptoms of Pano are Lameness that may shift from limb to limb, pain, fever, and loss of appetite.

Like many problems, pano may be difficult to diagnose. The dark patches may not appear on the x-rays. The lameness may not shift to another leg. It can be extremely frustrating with many bouts of radiographs. Assuming that the limping is caused by pano can help delay diagnosis of other more severe problems. Never assume that limping is caused by pano without having it properly diagnosed. This can be very scary to an owner who up until this point has had an agile giant puppy who loves to lope about the house at a full run! Pano is an inflammation of the bone itself and through radiographs (x-rays) a vet can often determine if this is indeed the problem a dog is experiencing. The dog normally limps on the affected limb and only rarely holds the limb to prevent any weight from being placed on it. It is often easily diagnosed with an x-ray; the lesion shows as the tell-tale dark patch on the bone. Pressure applied on the bone elicits a pain response.

Currently, treatment consists of reduction of the percentage of protein in the dog’s diet and pain management through the use of buffered aspirin, Ascriptin, or Rimadyl, or steroids in severe cases. Restricting the dog’s activity has not been shown to have an effect on the healing process. Panosteitis is treated symptomatically. Rest on comfortable dog crates, exercise restriction, and pain medication are prescribed. Pain medication is usually a non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drug, Rarely, severely affected dogs may need more potent pain relief such as narcotic drugs.

Panosteitis is treated symptomatically. Rest, exercise restriction, and pain medication are prescribed. Pain medication is usually a non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drug, or NSAID, such as aspirin, etodolac, or carprofen. Rarely, severely affected dogs may need more potent pain relief such as narcotic drugs. Currently, a common rumor is that low protein; low calcium diets may prevent this condition. It should be noted that the energy level of low protein/calcium diets is often lower as well. If this is the case, a puppy will eat much more of the diet in order to meet its energy needs, resulting in higher total calcium consumption. It may be preferable to feed a puppy diet and restrict total quantity to keep the dog lean than to use a low protein/low calcium adult dog food. Some vets recommend supplementing dogs with high doses of MSM, glucosamine and vitamin C, others provide anti-inflammatories to keep them comfortable. Whatever route you go, keep exercise to a minimum and know that if it is indeed Pano, your dog will grow out of it and will soon be back to his limber self again! Because of the potential genetic link, breeding animals should be screened to ensure that they are not potential carriers of the disease. Despite the numerous puppy foods catering to large breed dogs, there is no current evidence that confirms that these foods will lower the incidence of the disease when compared to standard commercial puppy food. If an animal shows symptoms of the disease, they should be promptly diagnosed and treated and exercise and activity should be reduced until the symptoms have gone away.

There is also known method of preventing Panosteitis; however, many veterinarians believe the disease is made worse by calorie-dense diets and over-supplementation with calcium and phosphorus. Thus, a diet change to an adult formula, or a large breed growth formula, is recommended. The dog should be fed an amount that does not promote obesity or overly rapid growth. Calcium and vitamin supplements should also be avoided.

A NOTE FROM FERGUS

Hello people, well what exciting things I have been up to lately. I went to a special show down in Pleasant Point – the boss came and woke me up at a very early hour and we left home and it was still dark, I don't like it in the boss's truck so I'm a gud wee boy and I just snuggle down and stay quiet.

So we got to the show – after a break down and we had to get a guy to jump start the truck. Well I was naughty in the ring I just wanted to 'chat' to the other dogs there, but I still came 1st but apparently I didn't look that good going around the ring. On the way home we broke down again and some very nice people had to help us all the way home (Took us 4 hours to get home).

Thanks again guys.

The next week after that I had three shows in the one weekend, it was an all breed's show in Mandeville, the boss took me in this show and I was naughty, naughty, naughty, I pulled like crazy and did wee bunny hops and I went to 'chat' to the other dogs and I leaned into the boss, I think I was close to being excused from the ring. I came last. The next day somebody else took me in the ring and I behaved slightly better, but again I came last. The boss decided to scratch me from the afternoon show as she didn't think it was fair on the other competitors to have me wanting to 'chat' to them all the time – I was distracting them from doing their 'thing'.

Well, as a result of my misbehaviour I got sent back to my breeder's place where I was supposed to be learning some manners. I was able to run in an open run and have learnt to stretch out my georgeous body. I got taken for some individual training away from the other dogs and the lady that took me told my breeder that I am an amazing dog and very well trained, it's only when you add other dogs to the mix that I behave like a ratbag. My boss was relieved to hear that I had at least learnt some good stuff. I know my boss has been despairing about my behaviour and why I am like it and people have different theories as to why I behave like it. But the good thing is that I am getting help, lots of people have been helping me and the boss and we are very grateful for this.

One day the boss and I were out for a bike ride – well she was riding the bike, not me, I was trotting nicely alongside, all of a sudden I saw something I didn't like and I pulled back on the lead, that caused the bike to veer sharply and then all of a sudden there was the boss on the ground in the gutter. I raced over and licked her face, she said 'ew yuck, get off' so I knew she was ok, except for the red stuff oozing out of her knee and arm. A nice man stopped to help and held me while the boss got up. The boss reckons she's pretty tuff and got back on the bike and we continued on our way. Between you and me tho I don't think she is as tough as she reckons because she still moans about a sore knee.

Well.....The big November speciality show was last weekend at our club and I was a ratbag. It was just so exciting and I was so eager to race around the ring that I forgot that I should also, look good doing it. My handler kept trying to hold me back and I kept trying to go fast and I pulled myself into the ground and looked terrible and sadly I was placed 5th out of 5 both days, but my handler got commended on how well and hard she worked. So roll on February and Dunedin. Before that tho, we've got lots of work to do.

Til next time people, be kind to yourselves and to dogs and Happy

Christmas — Fergus

German Shepherd cataracts

First of all, just what are cataracts?

A cataract is basically any kind of opacity or loss of transparency that occurs on the lens of the dog's eye.

In some cases, this opacity might just affect the whole structure of the lens but in other cases it may be confined to just a small area on the lens.

Any time a creature has a complete cataract covering both eyes they will be blind, but if they only have small non-progressive cataracts, then these might not interfere with their vision.

It is important to know that primary cataracts do frequently occur in some breeds more than in others. Sometimes cataracts may actually develop as the result of another inherited disorder such as glaucoma or progressive retinal atrophy. In some cases German Shepherd cataracts may actually affect one or both eyes. If a dog happens to have a small cataract in one eye it may not affect your dog's vision very much. However, at the other end of the spectrum, if cataracts begin to progress rapidly they may even cause complete blindness in your German Shepherd.

It is important to note that most German Shepherd cataracts are inherited. There can also be non-hereditary reasons for cataracts such as various diseases, toxicity, trauma or metabolic disturbances. Inherited cataracts, such as congenital cataracts, are those that are present when the puppy's eyes open or before the pup is at least 8 weeks of age. Juvenile or developmental cataracts occur later on in young animals, sometimes up to about the age of 4 years while onset cataracts are said to develop in mature adult animals.

Dogs have such acute senses of smell and of hearing too, that they can easily compensate for any visual difficulties they may have - especially whenever they are in familiar surroundings. In fact, because of these talents, many dog owners may be completely unaware that their dog has any problem or any kind of vision loss in the first place. If your dog does have cataracts or any kind of vision problems you can help by developing regular routines for exercise, keeping your visually impaired dog's surroundings the same, or if you must, introducing any kinds of changes very gradually over time, and being as patient as possible with your dog.

If you suspect that your German Shepherd is having any kinds of visual difficulties and you notice any kinds of discoloration in your dog's eyes such as a cloudy or milky look then you may want to have your veterinarian try to check out the dog for cataracts with an ophthalmoscope.

Treatment for cataracts can be done in several ways. It's true that cataracts can be removed surgically but discuss all alternatives with your veterinarian if your German Shepherd has this problem.

Keep in mind that above all, if your German Shepherd, their parents or littermates, has cataracts, then they should not be used for breeding since they could easily pass along this trait to any future offspring, causing even more health problems. German Shepherd cataracts can be treated and it's not the end of the world for your dog. If you have further questions about cataracts or any health issues with your German Shepherd, please speak with your veterinarian.
