Hello,

Welcome to March's edition of the Newsletter. Some exciting things have been happening within the club over the last few months, most exciting of course is the NEW WEBSITE; James did a great job in researching and exploring different options and working with the creators of the site in the design e.t.c.

Please read the NOTICE BOARD page lots of info on there.

A few weekends ago I made the trek to Dunedin to the two shows down there. It was an awesome trip; I really did enjoy it – yes even sleeping in the tent in the blustery wind, with my dog to keep me warm. I was however, disappointed by some competitors shouting and even calling out abuse to others, usually to their double handler or the double handler to the handler, it's really not on. Please remember there are usually children around and visitors visiting checking out what goes on and catching up with friends. Its really is not a good look for the sport or for yourselves. Remember what your Mama taught you – If you can't say something nice, then be quiet!! To the handler – tell your double handler what you want them to do BEFORE the class; To the double handler, listen and follow those instructions.

This is the last printed version of the newsletter you will receive by post – unless you specifically request a hardcopy, there is an option for this on your membership renewal form. There is a membership form enclosed within this newsletter and also they are available from the website.

The date for our 2012 A.G.M has been set – read on to find out when, that also means its time to apply to the trophy steward with your points for the year for the prize giving, the forms and criteria are further on too. As the next newsletter will be due out just after the A.G.M last years A.G.M minutes are included in this newsletter and will also be available on the notice board at the clubrooms, as are each months minutes. The previous years A.G.M minutes and presidents (vice presidents) report will also be available on the website one month prior to the A.G.M. Speaking of the A.G.M you might want to start thinking about who you want to be leading your club in 2012/2013.

In this issue there is an article on Bloat in the dog, Ive heard of a few dogs falling victim to this condition and I for one learnt a lot by reading this article.

Enjoy reading the Newsletter and don't be shy to let me know what you think.

Jane

VICE PRESIDENTS PEN

It is hard to believe that we are 3 months into 2012 and already have the Waikato and Otago shows behind us. Coming up in April we have the SIGSL Championship and Open shows and we look forward to welcoming a new judge to New Zealand. Jose Novelli now lives in Sydney but is from South America and looking forward to his first trip across the Tasman.

We will be welcoming a South African judge to our Triple Shows in June. We are sharing Frikkie Kraayenburg with South Australia and he will be joined by Stephen and Christine Collins for the remainder of the Triple Show weekend.

We have been in communication with Victoria regarding sharing German judges in November. Unfortunately their judge this year cannot stay away from Germany a further week but we are pursuing a sharing arrangement for the next 3 years which will go through to the Golden Jubilee in 2015.

Most of you will know by now that the North Island clubs have been unable to make arrangements to run a National this year which is disappointing. Following a meeting of members of all the South Island clubs in Dunedin, SIGSL has applied to NZKC to run a National in South Canterbury in April 2013. Members had hoped it would be run in November 2012, however NZKC requires application to be made no less than 12 months in advance.

Club has participated in Sausage sizzle fundraising twice this year with more to come. Offers of assistance would be appreciated by committee. We have purchased a display cabinet for the clubrooms – occasionally club trophies are “retired” and we can now put them on display.

With sadness we learned of the death of Malcolm Eveleigh earlier in March. With his wife Vivienne, he had been doing catering at club for the last 8 years and without him, Vivienne cannot continue with catering. SISGL was represented at the funeral and thanks to club members who sent messages of sympathy which were forwarded to the family. Club will be doing the catering for the April shows and we ask for your support.

A huge thank you to James who has got the new website up and running. There is opportunity now for breeders to advertise their kennels and also litters. Charges for advertising are elsewhere in this newsletter. Jane, our secretary, has been responsible for updates to the site and I hope you will all agree that the website has been money well spent.

My best regards to you all, Liz

The committee would like to extend a warm welcome to the following new members –

Michael Barr and Urzula Ploszarg, Sandra and Peter Van Kempen

On times you feel spirits are low always remember that tomorrow is a new day, but then why wait? when every minute, every second, every moment we are alive is an opportunity to dawn positive change

This is the last edition of the newsletter that will be posted to you - unless you specifically request a posted copy.

On the NEW membership renewal form there is an option to tick for an emailed or posted newsletter. The newsletter is also available on the website.

CATERING

The caterers that normally cater our shows will not be continuing with their business after the recent passing of Malcolm Eveleigh. The club has decided to cater the April show from within the club. If you are able to spare some time during the shows on the 14th and 15th April to help in the kitchen this would be appreciated. Also we are asking for donations of goods– if you can't help out on the day, this could be your way of helping – suggestions, frozen chickens, eggs, bags of fries/wedges, cheese, bacon e.t.c. Please contact Jane on 03 960 6697 or 027 427 9550 or email mjdalzell@xtra.co.nz with what you can donate and for drop off point.

APRIL SHOW BBQ

There will be a BBQ at the conclusion of judging and presentation of awards on Saturday 14th April approximately 5.30/6.00pm. All members are welcome even if you are not 'showing' please feel free to come along to the BBQ, $5.00 a head. Please indicate to Jane or Liz or Tarsh if you will be staying for this to give us an idea of numbers.

FUNDRAISING

Recently for fundraising the club has held two successful sausage sizzles, as well as several nights of security type work.

We will very soon have a raffle doing the rounds and this was made possible by the very generous donation of prizes from Darren Evans.

WEBSITE

Well!!!, its finally happened, YES the club has an all new website, check it out if you haven't already, www.sigsl.org.nz

If you would like to advertise your kennel and have your own kennel page you can do so at a cost of $30.00 per year payable with your annual subscription. Litter notifications may be advertised at a cost of $15.00 for a litter or dog under 12months of age. If you wish to advertise a dog over 12 months of age it will be at a cost $20.00 and must be approved by the committee.

Bloat (Gastric Dilatation/torsion)

By Dr. K Hedberg BVSc, 2005

Bloat is a dilation and/or torsion (twisting) of the stomach, which is usually accompanied by gas build up. Bloat can be accompanied by, and often caused by, a torsion of the spleen. It is a very rapidly developing and serious condition, which if not treated immediately, can result in a high mortality rate.

Signs of Bloat

The dog is usually found groaning with a swollen rigid abdomen which when tapped sounds hollow, like a drum. The dog is very distressed and the breathing very rapid and shallow. The mucous membranes are very pale to blue in colour, indicating a failing circulation system. Often, within 1-4 hours, it can cause death due to stress. What actually kills the dog is excessive pressure from the bloated stomach, pushing up against the diaphragm. This in turn causes pressure on the heart. The average dog, particularly an older animal, can only endure this kind of stress for a very short time before the circulation collapses and the animal dies.

If noticed in the very early stages, the dog may be seen hunched up, vomiting small amounts of frothy liquid, and often attempting to drink quantities of water, which it promptly vomits back.

Structural and Physical Risk Factors affecting the incidence of bloat:-

Circumstances relating to bloat cases are many and varied, however there are common factors, which are listed below: -.

1. Usually seen in older dogs (eight years and up), but it can occur at any age. It is unlikely to occur in a puppy. The older the animal, the poorer the muscle tone of the stomach and the muscles of the abdomen, increases the risk of the condition occurring.
2. Dogs that have poor muscle tone secondary to a debilitating disorder eg. Pancreatic insufficiency. Many bloat cases tend to have a concurrent medical problem eg. Pancreatitis, where there is poor muscle tone of the stomach, and/or gastritis (irritated gut), where there is increased motility of the gastrointestinal tract. Because of this, there is increased water consumption. Other factors include generalised poor muscle tone in old age, and debilitating diseases such as cancer.
3. Bloat is more common in deep chested breeds, especially in the excessively deep and/or narrow chested individuals. Affected breeds include German Shepherds, Irish Setters, Great Danes, Bassets, Borzois and the larger breeds.
4. Temperature and sudden variations. Bloat is seen more frequently during the hotter months of the year, when more water is ingested. Bloat cases tend to increase after sudden temperature changes like a hot spell, followed by cooler nights (spring and autumn weather) where there can be these rapid and large temperature diurnal changes. Feeding immediately after excessive exercise and/or excitement, or exercise just after feeding can also increase the chance of bloat. Dogs that are still very excited from running are more likely to drink large quantities of water immediately after their main meal. With dogs that are allowed to run after a meal, the risk that the stomach or the spleen will swing around and twist, and so cause bloat, is much higher.

5. Overexercised/overexcited dogs in hot weather. It may be seen also in dogs that are suddenly having far more exercise than they have been used to. In consequence, these individuals often have a sudden increase in demand for water and electrolytes. The increase in exercise may occur because they have been put near other dogs and are running up and down the fence, when previously they may have been housedogs.
6. Post whelping (reasonably uncommon but does occur) – bitches have loose ligaments after whelping, triggered hormonally (elastin) by the whelping of the litter. Any excessive excitement or heavy exercise in the early post whelping period could trigger the development of bloat in breeds that are already at risk.
7. Dogs that bolt their food – dogs that gush their food down extremely rapidly are more likely to bloat, particularly if any of the other risk factors are also present eg. Hot weather/excitement/poor muscle tone etc.
8. A less commonly seen group can occur secondary to prolonged surgical operations and/or prolonged recumbency.

Older dogs that bloat often have a combination of at least 3 or 4 of the contributing factors.

Younger dogs that bloat are more likely to be affected by excitement, heat and bolting their food.

Early Bloat Secondary to Dog Shows

Early stages of bloat can be seen occasionally seen on hot days at dog shows after prolonged gaiting and/or excessive excitement which leads to excessive panting followed by gulping of air in an attempt to lower elevated body temperature. If these dogs are immediately cooled down so that the respiration rate falls to normal levels, most dogs settle down and usually burp up the excess air. Other may continue on to full-blown bloat cases, particularly if put back into trailers before they have cooled and/or calmed down sufficiently to relax their respiration rate. Dogs lacking in electrolytes are more prone to stressing as the combination of heat, excitement combined with poor electrolyte balance can certainly tip the scales the wrong way with very little effort.

Immediate treatment is to cool the dog down, ideally in a wading pool with cool water being poured over the dog, particularly around the head, neck and belly areas. Cooling the dog usually takes 5-15 minutes depending on the degree of heat stress present. If the dog's abdomen is slightly swollen, once they have cooled sufficiently, give them some oil, peppermint tablets or charcoal tablets to stop gas production. Gently massage the stomach from the rear and most dogs will burp up the excess air fairly easily once they are relaxed. Once the dog has settled, give small drinks of water often, ideally laced with electrolytes to replace lost salts and sugars from exhaustion.

If they do not degas and remain stressed, you should get immediate veterinary attention.

Keep the dog cool; restrict water access until properly assessed.

Some dogs can settle down and then bloat later (usually within 12 hours) as they are still too low in electrolytes and often have a continuing acidosis from over exercise.

Common Food/feeding related contributing factors of Bloat Cases:-

1. Bloat is most commonly seen after the feeding of a large meal, especially if the dog is the type to eat its food very quickly. Some dogs may bloat within 5-15 minutes of eating a large meal, particularly if they run and jump about. The problem of bloat occurring immediately after a meal appears to be volume and time related ie. How much arrives in the stomach and how fast.

2. The type of food can be a contributing factor. Some people find that large amounts of dry food in the diet may be the causative agent, as the dog may drink a large quantity of water after a meal. The dry food swells considerably after ingestion and this can cause bloat. A dog that is fed a high proportion of dry dog food in a diet will usually have no trouble, especially if locked up before and after feeding, then kennelled with adequate, but limited amounts of water.

3. Sudden changes of dry foods and or food types can be contributing factors in a considerable percentage of bloat cases. This can cause gastric irritation, changing the bacterial balance in the gut etc. It may also occur secondary to the sudden feeding of large fatty meals.

4. High levels of soya bean meal in the dry dog food seems to predispose dogs to bloat, as the bean meal ferments rather rapidly.

5. Low levels of manganese (or low bio-availability of this in the diet) seem to increase the number seen.

6. If the salt content of the food is too high, the dog will drink more water than normal. Never exceed 2% salt in the diet (this refers to straight salt or sodium chloride; electrolytes are a slightly different).

General Treatment of Bloat Cases

The initial aim of treatment is to stabilise the circulation and treat the shock, decompress the stomach (usually by releasing the excess gas via a large gauge needle through the wall of the stomach), treat the associated pain and electrolyte imbalances – ie. Get the dog stabilised as quickly as possible so the dog can undergo surgery. The vast majority of cases are opened up immediately the dog has been stabilised with intravenous fluids, plasma etc, as the profound shock (hypotension) must be treated first.

Where a dog has gassed up without torsion of the stomach, these dogs may have a tube passed down into the stomach to relieve the build up of gas. These cases are rare, over 75-80% have twisted the stomach and without surgical intervention there is a very high re-occurrence of the bloat, often within several hours. If the tube cannot enter the stomach successfully, the dog has to be opened up and the problem surgically corrected. In many cases the stomach and/or the spleen are obviously twisted, in which case tubing is usually not attempted. Dogs that are already severely compromised (i.e. shock), the stress of trying to tube them can kill them.

The twisted stomach is often heavily bruised and sections of its wall may have to be removed because of infarction (lack of blood supply). As the stomach torsions, the blood supply to the stomach twists also. When the spleen has undergone torsion as well, the ligament and blood supply from the stomach wall is twisted and can be damaged as well. Damaged areas of the stomach wall are obvious at the time, but occasionally the heavily bruised areas can develop additional blood clots, and in turn reduce the blood supply to areas of the stomach wall.

Because of the recurrent nature of bloat, most veterinarians elect to suture part of the stomach wall to the wall of the abdomen in an attempt to prevent further bloat attacks.

Quite often the spleen has twisted as well, and is heavily engorged from the build-up of pressure from the twisted stomach. If the spleen has been compromised (the blood vessels leading to it have thrombosed or clotted), it is often removed during the operation, which further reduces the chance of recurrence.

Fluid therapy with high doses of antibiotics is the normal support therapy ongoing after the operation. Additional use of drugs such as Zantac*, Maxalon* and Carafate* are usually given for several days post operatively to prevent secondary complications. The possibility of clots developing in stressed blood vessels may have to be assessed and treated.

Despite the best of veterinary care, the success rate is not always high. The earlier treatment is initiated the better. Different veterinarians have varied regimes of treatment for bloat and the circumstances surrounding bloat cases can and do vary greatly. Those that survive the first 48 hours and steadily improve are unlikely to relapse.

Aftercare of Bloat Cases at Home.

This can be nearly as important as all the work the veterinarian has done to save your dog.

1. For the next few weeks, give small meals often.

Ideally, older animals and those with continuing medical problems should go onto a fairly rigid routine for the rest of their lives. This includes giving 2-3 small feeds a day, reduced exercise before and after meals, and not leaving large buckets of water available. Additives to the diet should be given to try and reduce gas build up.

2. Additives to help prevent re-occurrences include: -

(i). To prevent gas build up - charcoal tablets, 1-3 tablets with every meal or can use 'Tympanyl' (a peppermint based product).

(ii). Some form of oil to be added to each meal to help prevent rapid fermentation of food. About 1-2 tablespoons per meal – for large breeds.

(iii). A good quality vitamin and mineral source will fill any deficiencies in the diet and hopefully improve the muscle tone. B group vitamins, vitamin E, a low dose of selenium once or twice a week, elderly and or debilitated dogs may benefit from a low dose of anabolic steroids several times a week.

(iv). Acidophilus tablets/powder or other gut bacteria replacers (eg. Protexin) to ensure that the gut bacteria stay stable.

(v). Other helpful hints may include removing soya-bean meal from the diet, ie. Check on the bags of dry dog food. If you wish, change to rice based dry food or a natural food type diet. Those with permanently poor muscle tone could benefit from the addition of anabolics into their system, even if only given periodically.

Prevention of Bloat

1. If the weather is hot, feed the dog late at night, after it has cooled down. This can be as late as 10-11pm. If necessary, give a reduced meal and do not leave large amounts of water around. It is most important to lock the dog up in a confined area.

2. If the weather is hot and the dogs are having more exercise due to training, electrolytes should be given. Ideally give these in the food, as if given in the water, you cannot be certain the dog will obtain a sufficient dose. By giving extra electrolytes, the dogs cope with the heat better, particularly if required to perform in the heat.

3. If the dogs are elderly or in poor physical and muscle condition, feed twice daily and soak the dry dog food. This way, smaller amounts are eaten in any one meal.

4. If the dog has muscle wasting and has lost weight lately ie. Following illness, feed small meals often and limit the exercise after feeding. Build up the dog's muscle tone gradually ie. over several weeks but don't suddenly increase the dog's exercise.
5. Avoid any rapid changes of the dry food base of the diet, do this slowly over 1-2 weeks and if there is any sudden increase of water intake as a result of the change, revert back to the original dry food.
6. Avoid excessively salty foods, usually 2% in the diet is a maximum. Corned beef and food preserved in brine should not be fed. Ham and ham bones in particular should not be fed.
7. If paranoid about bloat, some of the suggestions above in the aftercare of bloat cases such as adding oil etc can be used routinely in older animals or those that seem to be high risk category due to health or training.

Above all:

1. Do not allow the dog to exercise heavily before or after meals, particularly in hot weather.
2. If your dog eats too quickly, feed twice daily and leave limited amounts of water – with due regards to hot weather. With the taller breeds, it can be beneficial to raise the food bowl so that the dog has to stretch its neck up, and hopefully the rate of ingestion will be slowed.
3. With heavy exercise in hot weather be extremely careful, give electrolytes while training and increase the amounts on the hotter days.

A NOTE FROM FERGUS

Hello People,

So, recently I was described by a trainer as the most stubborn dog hes seen in about 30 years of training dogs, oh dear, and there have been a lot of other words used to describe my behaviour too. People..... I just love people, other dogs, not so much. Maybe I am just the dog equivalent of the human juvinille delinquent – a bit of a tosser in my youth but then surprise the heck outa ya with my awesome behaviour when im older.

I must mention here that I am getting a lot of help and some humans have been working a lot with me and helping me and the boss and we would like to thank them, Thanks guys – you know who you are.

Well the big trip south to the shows in Dunedin has been and gone and Im pleased to inform you all that all that hard work training is paying off because I was a much better behaved dog in the ring than I was the time before. Im not saying Im perfect, actually I am not even going to say I am at a point where im even good yet, but definetly some improvement. On the Saturday I was the second dog in my class to go into the ring and although I did scramble a bit trying to say ‘hello’ to the dog in front, my handler did a fantastic job of keeping me steady and I even did a good individual and gaited nicely, when everyone was expecting me to pace – because that’s what I do when at training – ha ha fooled them into thinking I wouldn’t do it. My ‘stand’ looked terrible because apparently I do something called bridging myself and my front legs lean back. After a lot of trying to get me straight at training sessions the boss and my handler decided to not worry about it too much because the more they fiddled with my legs the more unsettled I became. So on the Saturday I came 5th out of six. The boss was happy with that as she didn’t have any unreal expectations on me. On the Sunday I was the first dog in my class to enter the ring and wow I loved being in the front - no other dogs ass in front of my nose – and I was really going for it and strutting my stuff and again did a good individual unfortunetly the judge didn’t think I was good enough to stay at the front and he called me out into fourth place, I didn’t like that because that put me behind the other dogs ass and so I threw a wee hissy fit , Oh yeah!! the judge didn’t notice me behaving but he sure saw me misbehaving allright and put me back a place so I ended up 5th again but this time it was last place. So im told the next show is in April and thankfully we only need to travel down to club for that one. Now ive got a new handler who has told me in no uncertain terms shes not going to take any $#!% from me, hmmmmmmmm I may of met my match, but we’ll see.

Til next time people, be kind to yourselves and to dogs – Fergus

Presidents Report

Hi Everyone

Wow – What a year!!

There have been many high and low lights for all of us and our animals, particularly for those residing in Christchurch.

The Club has held two successful ribbon parades where a 'day out' with the family and dogs has been enjoyed by many.

The National held in November was a huge success and it was great to see that September's earthquake did not rattle the enthusiasm or resolve of everyone. A great weekend was had by all and I'm sure you will join me once again in applauding the National Committee on all of their hard work to make the weekend the success it was

The A & P Security was again our major fundraiser and was performed in conjunction with Allied Security, so as to fall within compliance with the new OSH and security licence requirements. This was no small undertaking and I would like to thank Marty Wilson for his endless hours in organisation of this. Unfortunately, due to further changes to security licence requirements, this security is no longer an option as an ongoing fundraiser for our Club. With the loss of this major fundraiser in mind, as a Club, there needs to be some discussion at the AGM around fundraising options going forward.

The February earthquake had a shocking and devastating effect on many, and whilst we were all sluggish in recovery, the passion for our breed did not deter – our April Shows were another great 'coming together' and the weekend was enjoyed by all.

With the AGM in our sights, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the SIGSL Committee for their ongoing support, commitment and passion. They truly are a great group of people, particularly in light of the extreme goings on in the past 12 months. We have our Triple shows coming on Queens Birthday weekend which I'm sure will be another great weekend – let's hope the weather is good to us this year. I look forward to seeing you all at the forthcoming prize giving and AGM – it is your Club so it is pertinent that you have your say.

Kind Regard

Rachel Bisphan

Annual Accounts.

These were presented to the meeting in a raw draft due to the earthquakes and the mailbox being within the red zone cordon we were unable to retrieve the Bank statements needed to do a full audit in time before the meeting. This will now be done a.s.a.p and distributed to members.

It was also suggested due to the rising costs of having a full audit done it is acceptable to have a review of accounts instead.

General Business.

Accounts to be reviewed instead of full audit - it was agreed by members that a Notice of Motion to make changes to the Constitution regarding this matter be made to bring to a Special General Meeting. We have to have a Notice of Motion put forward and seconded (by club members), Then have it tabled at a Committee meeting, and then the Committee need to set a date for a Special General Meeting for it to be passed by members. Once that is done, we then need to make the necessary amendments to the Constitution and NZKC notified and sent a copy of that Constitution.

Moved by Bruce and seconded by Blue.

Minutes to go on the club notice board.

Judge for the November show Southland club being slow to give reply to have our show at the beginning of November so just in case we don't get their permission we will apply for the dates of 26th and 27th Nov, it will be a champ show and we would like to look at having one Australian judge and one Asian Judge.

A & P show security has been tendered out to Allied security and therefore is no longer an option for us for our major fundraiser.

Darren Evans has volunteered to make and donate furniture for the November show to be raffled.

Questions arose re training on Monday nights in the RDA centre – circulate an e-mail to all other clubs that the site is available to use for $3.00 per entry. There is plenty of room for other clubs to be able to share the site.

Meeting closed at 8.40pm.

I talk to him when I'm lonesome like; and I'm sure he understands. When he looks at me so attentively, and gently licks my hands; then he rubs his nose on my tailored clothes, but I never say naught thereat. For the good Lord knows I can buy more clothes, but never a friend like that. ~W. Dayton Wedgefarth
